

Are You a Creative Maverick or CREATIVE CHAMPION?

Robert Greenleaf tells us, "Hope rests in the imagination. Someone must, in their imagination, conceive of a better world before it can be built."

A strong connection exists between servant leadership and innovation. For people to offer new ideas, there must be a welcoming, open culture that encourages, lifts up, and nourishes the genius tucked away inside of us.

All of us have the capacity for creative thinking, but some excel at it. Creative Mavericks are those who have energy, passion, idealism, and an unrealistic unwillingness to let anything stand in the way of their great idea. They look at the same thing we are looking at, yet see something totally different.

Creative Mavericks need Creative Champions. Creative Champions are nurturers, protectors, facilitators, and interference runners for the mavericks so that their ideas can get through the organization. We will explore both roles and participate in an activity to apply the creative process, all while doing a creative project by SPARK!
